BETTER BE CAREFUL.

Mr. Bradbury, M.P., would prohibit the use of the British flag for advertising purposes. He had better be careful or he may get his political friends into trouble. Nobody Canada has used the flag for advertising purposes more persistently than the Ministers whom Mr. Bradbury supports, and certainly no man has made it the emblem for a more disreputable line of junk.

MORE "DON'TS."

The superintendent of the street railway has issued a list of "don'ts" for the guidance of the boys and girls. A couple more might be added for the benefit of some grown-up boys.

Don't stand in the rear vestibule and squirt tobacco juice over the floor, the ladies' skirts and everybody's boots.

Don't crowd into the front vestibule and detract the motorman's attention from his business.

DECIDABLE NONE THE LESS.

One British opponent has made the discovery that reciprocity was not necessary. That, of course, is true. But many things good and desirable are not necessary. The British preference, for example, was not really necessary, but it was a good thing all the same, both for Canada and for the Empire. Canada can, of course, get along without reciprocity, just as Canada would get along without the British preference or even without Mr. Rainville, M.P. But Canada would get along better with reciprocity, just as it gets along better with the British preference, and as it perhaps gets along better with Mr. Rainville, M.P., than it would without him.

CATTLE PRICES.

A correspondent of the Calgary Herald writes that paper proving to his own satisfaction and that of the Herald that George Lane is losing money by shipping cattle to Chicago instead of selling them on this side of the boundary. If self-interest be a merit, the restrictions are surely a virtuous lot. The idea of anyone trying to tell George Lane how to make money out of a cattle deal is funny enough to make a steer laugh.

But supposing, for the sake of argument, that this Herald's mathematician were right. What could he prove but that the existing tariff and freight rates were a disadvantage to the Canadian cattle dealer, and hence to the Canadian cattle-growers? And that a reduction of these barriers between our cattle and the Chicago stock-yards would be a good and not a bad thing for Alberta?

NOT DECEIVED.

Hon. Robert Rogers declared in Parliament on Thursday that he did not authorize Mr. Forget to bribe the voters of Sorel with the promise of a marine railway. Mr. Rogers did not say that he did not authorize Mr. Forget to bribe the voters of Sorel with the promise of a marine railway. Mr. Rogers did not say that he did not authorize Mr. Forget to bribe the voters of Sorel with the promise of a marine railway. Mr. Rogers did not say that he did not authorize Mr. Forget to bribe the voters of Sorel with the promise of a marine railway.

And in the present instance the circumstantial evidence is with Mr. Rogers. It is hardly conceivable that a man of his repute would have peddled bribes on the declared responsibility of his Ministerial friends unless he had their warrant for doing so. Unless the Government can produce something besides the worthless statement of Hon. Robert Rogers to the contrary, they must expect the public to believe that Mr. Forget told the truth when he said that he tendered his bribe at the instance of the present Minister of Public Works.

SHOULD THE COUNCIL?

SELECT THE MAYOR?

Alderman Douglas proposes that the method of selecting the mayor of the city be changed from the direct to the representative; that instead of the mayor being elected by popular vote from the burgesses at large he should be chosen by the aldermen from among themselves. The effect of this change would be to put the government of the city more nearly on a par with the governmental system of the province and the Dominion. The premier of a province or of the Dominion is not chosen directly by the people, but by their representatives in the Legislature or in Parliament. The proposed scheme would substitute this representative selection for the existing method of popular election in the case of the head of the city administration.

One benefit of the arrangement would be that the mayor would usually be a man with experience in the affairs of the city. Normally the council would select as chief magistrate some one of its members who had sat in the council of the previous year, and who would thus have a degree of personal familiarity with the running of the civic machine and with the matters of current importance. That would be an undoubted advantage.

Probably under this system attention would be more keenly devoted to the selection of good men as aldermen. At present the mayoral contest is the all-absorbing feature in a municipal campaign. This works out badly in two respects. Men who could equally discharge the duties of aldermen stay out of the running because they feel that the council is not a very important body—that, in fact, it does not matter much what kind of a council we have so long as the council is there and the mayor is capable men. On the other hand, the public interest being centered in the mayoral contest, really good aldermanic candidates do not get a fair chance to secure a verdict on their merits. The aldermanic aspirant who makes the most noise is the one who stands the best chance of election; indeed, unless he makes considerable noise the public are likely to forget about him altogether. The proposed scheme would eliminate the contesting mayoralty contest and leave public attention free to measure the merits and proposals of the men seeking to be elected to the council itself. And the knowledge that any one of the men elected to the council might be made mayor would probably cause the voter to exercise great caution as to whom he elected as alderman.

On the other hand, to adopt the representative system would be to adopt his bad as well as its good points. The weakness as well as the strength of that system is the inducement it affords for the formation of political parties. It might easily be, if the council had the election of the mayor, that the aldermen would be found split into factions in support of two or more aspirants for the position; that after one or other of these had won the others, who had been the supporters of the others would remain throughout the year as a factious and trouble-making opposition.

The hinge of the question is whether, under the proposed system, we would be likely to get a council of aldermen big enough to pay attention to municipal matters in preference to playing politics. If we could be tolerably sure of getting under it a council of the best business men in the community, the proposed arrangement would work well. But if we would be fairly liable to get a majority of small men in the aldermanic seats, the arrangement would be bad.

In any event, the proposal is a radical one and not one for off-hand approval or condemnation. It is to be brought before the council on Tuesday evening and it will worth the serious consideration of aldermen and public.

Remarked on the Side

Diplomats, it is reported, are now working anxiously towards a peaceful solution of the Italian problem. The fate of Europe possibly hangs upon an extra bottle of today, and according to Winston Churchill, it is a question now of peace or pieces.

It is now announced that the illness of the Czar is caused by him having a skin too few. What else could be expected after generations of biting?

Humanitarian Deane wants to prohibit the use of the cruel "black snake" whip by farmers. If pressed on the point, however, the lieutenant would probably be willing to admit that "snake" is too good a name for the users of such weapons.

One of our aldermanic candidates' ten "five commandments" is: "Thou shalt not let the wicked fly free." This is rather complicating matters. There are many flies that could prove proofs of a species life. Are those to be spared pending the inquiries of a probe committee?

It is not parliamentary language to call a man a liar, but it appears to be quite within the rules of debate to not chosen directly by the people, but by their representatives in the Legislature or in Parliament. The proposed scheme would substitute this representative selection for the existing method of popular election in the case of the head of the city administration.

Hon. Robert Rogers says that no arrest was made in Macedonia that was not justified by circumstances. The chief circumstance, of course, was the dire necessity of electing the government candidate.

King Manuel, late of Portugal, is to have all his furniture and other personal belongings sent to him in London. Further said, King Manuel was hoping to be used to come back home again.

The financial report of the Canadian Industrial exhibition has been described by a shareholder on a conception of logic for the education of the masses. Sounds like a good shot, but as the report was for the benefit of shareholders, the remark has a bit of the homing about it.

Although Christmas is still a few weeks ahead, it is possible that the person who so mysteriously escaped pursuit after trying to get into a Jasper Avenue Candy store during the night, was none other than Santa Claus in disguise. It has not been a matter of wonder where he managed to collect all his "goodies."

It has been computed that Canada probably about eighty million dollars a year on drink and only two millions on missionaries. If, however, there were a tax on rum and a monopoly in their sale, the two items might be drawn closer together.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Significant.
 Winnipeg Free Press—It is a fact not without significance that the C. P. R. should be found appealing from the railway commission to the Jordan government.

Mr. Borden Please Note.

Winnipeg Telegram (Can.)—Here all your reports on the cost of high living. Put them in the waste paper basket. They are not worth the paper on which they are printed. In two centuries all Chicago farmers have pleaded the problem in letters of fire put into the head of a barrel of apples.
 "I got 10 cents for this barrel of apples. What else can I do for it?"
 The Winnipeg consumer who bought that barrel of apples paid five dollars and twenty-five cents for it. That Ontario farmer has made history. He has done more than all the committees of commerce, royal commissions, boards of trade and chambers of commerce on commerce.
 He has stated the problem of the high cost of living. Within a measureable number of years the solution will involve bloodshed. In Germany it already has done so already. If we do not desire the experience of that way out, we must find some other.

The Paving Situation

Nothing but paving will make Edmonton's streets passable at all seasons of the year. To apply loose gravel is useless. Gravel makes a rough road in a dry time and in the rainy season it sinks out at sight and the road is worse than ever. Thus paving is far cheaper in the end than the first cost may be greater.

Thousands of dollars are lost every year through lack of paved streets in Edmonton. The earnings of a teamster or delivery man, who has to haul over an unpaved street will fall off from $150 to $200 during the rainy season when the roads are bad.

At a conservative estimate there are 1000 teamsters and delivery men in Edmonton, and the bad roads mean to them a total annual loss of from $150,000 to $200,000. This sum would go far toward bettering the conditions from the paving standpoint.

In Edmonton a bad paving program is a necessity. All that the people ask is that the paving appropriation be spent so as to get a much value as possible for the money, and that the program be planned to meet first of all the needs that are most urgent.

Scene of Shocking Violence in Court at Aberdeen,
Scotland.

NEITHER MAGISTRATE
NOR CLERK INJURED

Another Suffragette Mistook
Clergyman for Chancellor and Horsewhipped Him.

Aberdeen, Scotland, Nov. 26.—Mistaken suffragettes today brought about two scenes of violence in which a woman's shoe and a horsewhip were used as weapons.

The first outbreak occurred when three of the women, Joyce Lock, Mary Park and Mary Peck, who had been caught just outside the court, entered the court.

As the women entered the court, they were met by the magistrate, Lord George, who was sitting on the bench. The women were brought up before the magistrate, and the magistrate ordered them to be removed from the court.

As the women were being removed from the court, they were met by the magistrate, Lord George, who was sitting on the bench. The women were brought up before the magistrate, and the magistrate ordered them to be removed from the court.
